BETHEL AND VICINITY

Ronald Keddy of Boston is visiting in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Custer Quimby have moved to Raymond, N. H.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hersey of Bangor were Sunday callers at Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Sanborn's.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bradford of South Portland were Monday guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Sanborn.

Patricia Tucker is a guest of Dr. and Mrs. R. R. Tibbets while her mother, Mrs. Dorothy Tucker, is in Boston.

Miss Harriet Merrill was called to Grand Rapids, Mich., Monday by the illness of her mother, Mrs. Frank L. Merrill.

Miss Mary Ella Clark of Melrose, Mass., has been with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred I. Clark, the past two weeks.

GOULD ACADEMY CLASS OF 1913 HOLDS REUNION

Members of the class of 1913, Gould Academy, held a get-together at the picnic grounds below Locke Mills last Tuesday evening. Fish chowder, coffee, roasted corn, sandwiches, cookies and ice cream was the supper planned. Everyone ate to capacity and suggested a get-together more often.

Those present were Miss Eva Bean, Woodstock; Mr. and Mrs. James Ring, Locke Mills; Mr. and Mrs. John Meserve and Mrs. Delison Conroy, Bethel; Mr. and Mrs. Urban Bartlett, Clark and Dorothy Bartlett, Mr. and Mrs. John Howe, East Bethel; Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Fales, Dorchester, Mass.

Richard and Clayton Crockett spent Sunday in Newport, Vt.

Mrs. Vertie Hutchins is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Clark.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Shaw of Auburn were in town on business Monday.

Misses Virginia Chapman, Madelyn Bird and Barbara Hall returned Sunday to their homes in town after working during the summer at Portsmouth, N. H.

While returning home from school Monday noon, Eugene Van Den Kerkhoven Jr. suffered a broken left collar bone when his bicycle collided with a truck owned by Dr. S. S. Greenleaf and driven by Eldridge Steves. The accident occurred at the corner of Broad and Paradise Streets.

EBEN S. KILBORN

Eben S. Kilborn passed away Friday noon at the C. M. G. Hospital, Lewiston, after an illness of several weeks.

He was born in Harrison July 1, 1846, the son of Enos and Rhoda Shaw Kilborn. Coming to West Bethel with his mother in 1854, he attended school there. At an early age he had saved enough to purchase a half interest in the old grist mill on Mill Brook, and he soon purchased the remainder and carried on a flour, grain and feed business. He later acquired the saw mill nearby where he built a new mill and manufactured long and short lumber. In 1892 he purchased the Clough carding mill on the same stream, which he converted into a spool stock and dowell mill. For many years he was a large timberland owner and dealer in lumber, spool stock, pulp wood and cord wood. He retired from active business about 20 years ago.

Mr. Kilborn served the town of Bethel five terms as selectman, several years as road commissioner, and represented the district in legislature. He was for many years a trustee of Gould Academy and of Bethel Savings Bank, and a director of Bethel Water Com-

GOULD ACADEMY EXPECTS LARGER ATTENDANCE

Advance registration indicates that Gould Academy will be overcrowded this year, thus making it necessary to strictly enforce the rule that only registered dormitory students and residents of the town and vicinity can be accepted. There will be no room in the school for those pupils planning to room in the town and attend the Academy. This represents no change in policy, only an enforcement of the past regulation, namely; that all non-resident pupils must live in the school dormitories.

POORE-POTTER

Mrs. Elsie Potter and Leslie Poore were united in marriage Sunday evening at the Sherman Plu house where they will reside. The ceremony was performed by Rev. M. A. Gordon who used the single ring service.

Guests present were Horace Annas, Mrs. M. A. Gordon, Mrs. Stanley Wentzell, Misses Arlene Potter, Mary Wentzell and Rachel Gordon.

Many.

He married Miss Joan Stearns of Paris and they have traveled extensively in this country and in Europe. For several years past they have spent the winters in Portland or in the South, and the summers at their residence at Songo Pond in Albany.

He joined Bethel Lodge, F. and A. M., 70 years ago, and was a member of other fraternal societies. He was endowed with a pleasing personality, rare tact and excellent judgment, and was considered an outstanding example of a "self made man."

Funeral services were held at the Congregational Church Sunday afternoon. Masonic services were conducted at the church and the cemetery. Burial was at Woodlawn Cemetery.

Mrs. Dorothy Tucker underwent surgery this morning at the Boston City Hospital, and is resting comfortably.

UPTON LANDMARK BURNED WEDNESDAY

Two infant children of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Enman were rescued yesterday afternoon when fire destroyed the Hollis Abbott place at Upton. The babies were asleep in an upstairs room near where the fire evidently started, and in a few minutes would have been lost. The buildings were one of the old landmarks of the town and were owned by James Barnett.

The cause of the fire is not known.

The house was occupied by the families of Franklin Enman and Peter LeMay. A considerable part of the downstairs furnishings was saved, but little from the upper rooms. Much clothing, canned goods, etc., was also lost. The amount of loss was not estimated.

The pumper of the State forestry department which was stationed nearby was very effective in saving adjacent buildings.

BAKERS GIVEN SHOWER

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Baker were given a variety shower Monday evening in honor of their recent marriage, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bennett. The party was planned by Mrs. Augustus Carter.

Those present besides the honor guests were Mr. and Mrs. Joe Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bennett, Mrs. M. A. Nalme, Mrs. Angelo Onofrio, Mrs. Leroy Brown, Mrs. Augustus Carter, Miss Rebecca Carter, Miss Jane Runyan, Miss Elaine Warren, Miss Francine Warren, Miss Arlene Brown, Miss Ruth Bennett, Miss Alice Bennett, Romeo Baker, Laurence Bennett, Isabelle, Laura Belle and Arlene Bennett, and Margaret Baker.

Mrs. Florence Hurd of Athens is visiting her cousin, Carl Brown, and family.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

A Non-Partisan Editorial Review of the Events of Each Week, Illustrated

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst, and not necessarily of this newspaper.

U. S. DEFENSE:
Boats for Bases

President Roosevelt notified congress that the United States had reached an agreement with Great Britain whereby this country would obtain leases on naval and air bases in British possessions in this hemisphere in exchange for the transfer of 50 over-age U. S. destroyers to England.

Expected to arouse a storm of debate, the act requires no ratification by congress, but was submitted to that body to advise the nation of the arrangements made. Attorney General Robert H. Jackson submitted an opinion to the White House which upheld the legality of the trade.

The destroyers were built by the United States during the World war and had been out of service for some time until they were recently re-commissioned.

Ninety-nine year leases on territory in Newfoundland, on the island of Bermuda, the Bahamas, Jamaica, St. Lucia, Trinidad, and Antigua in the Atlantic and in British Guiana in South America are granted to the United States by the terms of the agreement. Naval and air stations are expected to be constructed at these points to aid in U. S. plans for a military defense of the Western hemisphere.

AVIATION:
Worst Tragedy

In the worst commercial aviation tragedy in the country's history, and the first in more than 18 months, 25 persons lost their lives when a Pennsylvania-Central airliner crashed near Lovettsville, Va., during a violent thunderstorm. The liner, en route from Washington, D. C., to Pittsburgh, Pa., plunged into the side of a Blue Ridge mountain foothill, apparently with the throttles of its two engines wide open.

All of the persons aboard the ship perished. Among the 21 passengers was Sen. Hiram W. Johnson, Farmer-Laborer, of Montana. The plane seemed to have exploded when it struck the hill, scattering wreckage and bodies of the victims over a large area.

ARKANSAS:
Travelers

Added by four trusty guards, two of them convicted murderers, 32 prisoners escaped from Cummins State prison farm near Pine Bluff, Ark., in a wild mass break. The guards were prisoners who had been appointed trustees because of their good records and were supplied with saddle horses and guns.

Of the six loyal trustees who refused to join in the break, and were

Here's a man that both Republicans and Democrats can congratulate. He's Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California (center) who won both the Republican and Democratic nomination for United States senator in the recent California primary election. This practically assures him of reelection for his fifth term. He is pictured here being congratulated by Democratic Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana (left) and G. O. P. Senator Warren R. Austin of Vermont (right).

prevented by ringleaders of the plot from interfering, one was killed when he tried to shoot it out with the escaping prisoners.

The convicts fled with four high-powered rifles and six sawed-off shot guns, some of which were weapons they had had in their possession prior to the break.

II GERMAN WAR:
Aerial

The Germans reversed their aerial tactics, just as they reversed their infantry tactics in 1917. At the beginning of the first World war, the Germans would attack in regular, regimented mass formation. The losses were colossal, especially at Verdun. It was sheer mass murder. Late in 1917, General von Hutler changed the German methodology. He devised a hit-and-run, individual, scattering attack, which wiped out the whole British Fifth army at St. Quentin, on March 21, 1918. It was the worst day the British army ever had, until Dunkirk, in 1940.

The same cycle has come to German aviation. In the battle of England, the German planes were attacking in regimented, mass waves. The losses were tremendous—close to 1,000 planes. General Milch changed the method. He sent the German machines over in irregular, individualistic flocks, and by night, instead of by day. This proved much more economical, and much less ineffective. The amusing feature was this: Generals von Hutler and Milch learned their "novel" military maneuvers from no less a source than the American Indians of the Eighteenth century—the Redskins that ambushed General Braddock, etc., out Pittsburgher way.

NAMES in the news . . .

Mike Hagg of Texas organized a no-third term Democratic party in his native empire down Mexico way. The no-third termers of Texas pledged themselves as full-breasted, red-blooded Wilkieites of the first water. They said they wanted Wilkie to "lead them out of chaos."

Capt. George Price of the U. S. army air corps was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for a test flight at Buffalo, where he made a successful "crash" landing based on rare judgment and skill.

Dr. B. A. Maw, the premier of British-owned Burma, between China and India, was jailed for a year. He was anti-British, and they called him "the dictator of the freedom bloc."

Norman Thomas, the socialist candidate for Yankee President, 1940 edition, started a 15,000-mile campaign trip through 28 states.

Pauline Powell, now cute-iferous Miss New Orleans, got infantile paralysis when she was just two. She is now 17 and in great shape. En route to the Atlantic City national contest, she stopped off at Warm Springs, Ga., where she greatly cheered the patients by her so-eminent success story.

Miss Betty Farley, age 17, daughter of Big James the Organizer, was reported as wearing a Wilkie button all around Birmingham, Ala. Big James the Organizer denied it, but the Republicans and Wilkieites were in high conniptions just the same.

CAMPAIGN:
Not Hot Enough

The 1940 campaign still was not very hot. Both the candidates acted very genteel, although some of their supporters vocalized like cats on a back fence. The best Republican crack was this (for a lot of Republicans still didn't care for Wilkie): If Mr. Wilkie wasn't going to vote for Mr. Roosevelt, he would undoubtedly vote for Mr. Roosevelt. These Republicans (there were a lot of them) felt that the foreign policies of Wilkie were no better than those of Roosevelt, and that—they growled—was a sad state of affairs. This growling was becoming a really serious matter, within the Republican ranks. Wilkie, meanwhile, leaned more and more on the Wilkie clubs and the Independent Democrats, and less and less on the angry Republican regulars, who tend to be isolationist.

Revolution?

The Russell-Overton amendment to the conscription bill brought forth some Wilkie-Roosevelt nastiness. The amendment in question, would permit the government to conscript any industry in peacetime, if the government considered that industry necessary for national defense. Some people felt it was aimed directly at Henry Ford, who wouldn't play ball with the New Dealers, and wouldn't help the British. Wilkie didn't like the amendment, and tried to draw Roosevelt out on it. Roosevelt refused to be drawn out, but the dopesters believed he liked the amendment, and the radical New Dealers certainly liked it fine. It was the key, they said, to unlock the castle of entrenched Yankee capitalism. The Russell-Overton amendment, said the political scientists, was probably the most truly revolutionary detail in American history—more revolutionary than the Declaration of Independence, or the emancipation proclamation. This was hotly contradicted, and the debate grew bitter. Meanwhile, Secretary Tokes got called a Hitler-in-short-pants, and Wilkie got smeared as a "barefoot Wall Street boy—the rich man's Roosevelt." Even so, the 1940 campaign was pokey, and Norman Thomas looked awfully good to a lot of perfectly respectable Republicans and Democrats.

FRANCO-MEX:
Agreement

After the Spanish civil war, huge masses of Spanish loyalists, of all sizes and sexes, flocked to neutral France, to escape the victorious General Franco. They couldn't go home, and the French treated them very well, on the whole. But Franco, these days, is no place for 250,000 Spanish refugees, even though old Marshal Petain does the best he can. So the Mexican government did a smart thing. It signed a pact with Franco, and will take the whole 250,000 Spaniards, regardless of their politics. It was a magnificent thing, and will do Mexico a world of good. The only exceptions, out of the quarter million, will be common criminals, who will get sent back to Spain. If the Franco government demands them. There are very few of these. The Mexican government asked Washington for U. S. ships, to transport the 250,000 to the halls of Montezuma. There, they will bolster Mexico's white population, as against the overwhelming masses of Indians. President Cardenas, himself, is an Amerind and proud of it.

Meanwhile, in the abandoned country districts of France, Marshal Petain was offering land, rent-free. After three years, the "free" tenants-to-be will pay half-rent for six years. This is to try and get the French agricultural system back into adequate production. Another decree promises wages to farmers who are teaching farm work to apprentices. The more children you have, according to the reproductive M. Petain, the better your chance of getting nice, free farmland. Since the French, being logical people, hate big families, therein lay the catch to the whole "free" proposition.

DICTATOR:
Non-Dictatorial

Dictator Winston Churchill of England was in a big air raid on the coast of Kent. It was at a place called Ramsgate. The dictator entered an underground air-raid shelter, puffing on one of his favorite cigars—which he chews like Barney Oldfield. The mayor of Ramsgate said, sternly, "Put out that cigar, Mr. Churchill!" The dictator looked sheepish, and humbly did so. "There goes a good 'un," said he, crestfallen. Therein lies the essential difference between British and German dictators, in the year of grace, 1940. Churchill's daughter married a vaudeville actor, and his nephew is a Communist. He himself is a trade-unionized brick-layer, an artist, and an author. He is an ultra-blue-blood, he is half American, and he served with the Spanish against America (he has never cared for America) in the Spanish war of 1898. When a New York taxi-driver knocked him down a few years ago, he gave the penitent fellow a cigar. He also told him an off-color joke. In short, the dictatorial Mr. Churchill tends to be a pretty good guy.

Namesake

In London, Umbrella Chamberlain—Churchill's great rival—has a namesake, called plain George Chamberlain. He is 23. He is a soldier. During a furious German air raid, he yawned so widely that he dislocated his jaw, and had to go to a hospital for serious treatment. Let that be a lesson to the hysterics of America!

Hispanic

The most reactionary politico in England, Sir Samuel Hoare, was sent to Spain as British ambassador. It was announced, on good authority, that he promised Spain the following, if the Hispanics would stay out: Spain would get Gibraltar (after peace was signed); also Portugal (an age-old ally of England!); also French Morocco.

Stowaway!

So desperate was Leonore Hirmukallio, 18 (above), to get to the United States that she stowed away on the ship American Legion, which brought 870 refugees from the European war zones. Leonore comes from Helsinki, Finland. Latest reports indicate that immigration authorities in the United States would be forced to exclude her from entrance into this country.

WASHINGTON.—There is no way of confirming, either in Washington, in Berlin, or in Tokyo, the most interesting report that comes out of China—that Hitler has refused his permission to Japan to grab French Indo-China and the Dutch East Indies. The general idea of the report is that Hitler is unwilling to permit Japan to seize such a large percentage of the fruits of his victory over France and Holland, in view of the fact that Nippon has contributed so little to the Nazi effort.

The report further states that, some time back, when the Germans approached Japan about sending her navy to join those of Italy and Germany, with a view to annihilating the British fleet, the Japanese preferred watchful waiting. Now, the report goes on, the Nazis feel that they have victory within their grasp without calling on Japan, and they do not propose to see Japan make the same sort of territorial profit, only on a much larger scale, that she made from the last World war. That time, also, the Germans remember bitterly, Japan paid a very small price in military effort for her gains.

But while the report, for obvious reasons, cannot be confirmed, there is an inclination in official circles here to accept it at almost face value. It is too logical to be utterly untrue.

Further, there is another reason why the Germans might view with alarm Japanese aggression in the Dutch East Indies. They remember the amazement with which the whole world heard the sharp caution of Secretary of State Cordell Hull that this country would be much disturbed at any change in ownership of the Dutch East Indies.

Berlin Distrusts U. S. Defense Preparations

At first blush it might seem that, if the Germans are worried about the possibility of the United States getting into the war, they might welcome a diversion in the Far East calculated to keep Uncle Sam very busy until the war in Europe is over. This, of course, might be the German reasoning, but it is not thought here that it is. Berlin is extremely distrustful of every move Washington is making toward preparedness. There are indications that the Nazis do not want the United States on a war basis, entirely aside from any fear that this country might actually enter the European war.

has not been important from a military standpoint, horrifying as it may be from the humanitarian aspect.

Harold Icke Appears On 'Information Please'

Sen. Carter Glass, despite his fiery temper and the ease with which it can be aroused, has never committed murder. This is a record, considering his 82 years, which his friends commend very highly, in view of the number of times they were unable to understand how he was able to restrain himself.

But the old man is getting soft, or perhaps it is the mellowing influence of his honeymoon, for Harold L. Icke is still alive as this is written. The point of all this is that, in an effort to demonstrate to the country that making a showing on the "Information Please" radio hour is not much of a stunt, and that folks are attaching entirely too much importance to the showing Wendell L. Willkie made over the air and in the news-reels in his unrehearsed performance as co-star with John Kieran and F. P. A.

So Honest Harold appeared, with the two stars just mentioned and Kenneth F. Simpson, the New York Republican leader, as a fellow guest. It is tough to admit but Icke did not show up very well, and in his polite but misguided efforts to help the prominent New Dealer out, Clifton Fadiman, the interlocutor, did not help things any.

The question was in the administration of what President the federal reserve act was passed. Icke had his hand up right away, and, unfortunately for the feelings of Senator Glass, Fadiman ignored John Kieran, who KNEW, and called on the secretary of the Interior. Icke promptly said this happened in the Harding administration.

In the roundtable discussion which followed it appeared that both Fadiman and Icke seemed to have gotten the notion that Wilson followed Harding in the White House, instead of the other way round. Stage fright, probably, on Icke's part, for he certainly knew better.

But the trouble about Senator Glass' reaction is that, of all the things he has done in his long and useful life, the one he is proudest of is that he fathered the federal reserve act. It was he who was chairman of the house banking and currency committee at the time of its passage, and his colleagues in both house and senate have always given him more credit than any other man for piloting it through not only the house of representatives, but through the conference committee which adjusted the differences in details of the bills as they passed the house and senate.

Star Dust STAGE SCREEN RADIO

IF YOU plan to be driving in Tucson, Ariz., early in October make sure in advance whether you'll be allowed to or not. For there'll be three days when it will be the only city in the United States without an automobile, truck, motorcycle or even a gasoline scooter on its streets. And it's all because of the movies. "Arizona" will have what's known in the trade as its world premier in Tucson, and the city is planning quite a celebration—a governor's state ball, a three-day 1860 fiesta in the adobe city of Tucson, built for the picture, a rodeo with national roping and riding stars, and Indian pow-wows. Jean Arthur, William Holden, Warren William and all other members of the cast will be specially honored.

Some of the best stories about a movie are not heard until it is finished and the principals have gone on to other pictures. Here's one. Arriving at the set for "He Stayed for Breakfast," Columbia's new comedy starring Loretta Young and Melvyn Douglas, visitors found the set barred to outsiders. They were told that the players were working in an extremely small space where it would be impossible to watch.

The real reason, disclosed later, was that Douglas was working in a woman's dressing gown. "I'll look silly enough on the screen," he explained, when asking that the set be closed.

When you see Hedy Lamarr and Clark Gable in "Comrade X" don't be puzzled if the story seems familiar. It's "Clear All Wires," which Spencer Tracy made seven years ago. The story of an American newspaper man's adventures in Russia, it's been rewritten to include incidents in the recent Soviet military ventures.

June McCloy may win a bet with her husband if you like her well enough in "Glamour for Sale." In which she has the second feminine lead. Nine years ago she left Hollywood to make a name for herself as a night club singer, and succeeded. In 1936 she married and retired. Now she wants to return to the screen; she's bet her husband that she can make good within six months; if she can't, she'll go back to being just a wife. So she's working now in the picture starring Anita Louise and Roger Pryor. She has a chance at her specialty—she sings a torch song. But so does Anita Louise.

ODDS AND ENDS

Jon Hall recently celebrated three years of sitting in the same chair at the CBS Star Theater broadcasts. He began attending the broadcasts to hear his wife, Frances Langford, sing, and has never missed one since. If someone else sits in his particular chair in the clients' room, he says "I'm sorry. You're sitting in our good luck chair—I'll have to ask you to move."

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

By ROBERT McSHANE
(Released by Western Newspaper Union)

ONE of the least known managers in big league baseball is Del Baker, who two years ago succeeded Mickey Cochrane as manager of the Detroit Tigers. The spotlight focused on him only once—when he took over Cochrane's job in a surprise move. Since then he has remained in the background.

Baker's anonymity is unusual. Early this season the Tigers were rated as the team to grab the American league pennant—providing the Yankees failed to snap out of their slump. Even then Del didn't get the publicity one would expect.

It is true that he is not accustomed to the headlines. He spent most of his playing days in the minors. When he served as aide to Cochrane he was almost eclipsed by that colorful individual's personality. But he did his work well and proved a valuable asset to the team. That was proved when he was named to replace Black Mike.

Popular With Players

Visitors to the Tigers' dugout probably don't notice Baker. They watch Dick Bartell, Bobo Newsom, Hank Greenberg and the other stellar attractions of the club. All of which seems to please Baker just as much as it does the more brightly shining stars.

The Detroit ball players like and respect Baker. They favored his selection as manager. Things weren't running very smoothly with the club when he took over. Cochrane and his men weren't always on the best of terms and a great many of the stories concerning dugout and clubhouse conflicts were true.

Baker's calmness and cool judgment appealed to the players. He was in direct contrast to the excitable Cochrane. The Tigers' slump was checked and they rose from the second division to fourth place, in which position they finished the season. Last year the Tigers finished fifth. This was no reflection on Baker as many of the players were slipping. In fact, fifth place wasn't at all bad. The Tigers had been in last place during one stretch.

Shifts Draw Fire

At the opening of the present season Baker engineered a trade of Bill Rogell to the Chicago Cubs for Dick Bartell. He assigned big Hank Greenberg to the outfield and Rudy York to first base. He was criticized for the shifts, but subsequent events proved his foresight.

The Tigers do not look like pennant winners this year. Their pitching is too spotty and their defense a bit too loose. Baset all year with injuries, they were forced to function too long without the services of Charley Gehringer, veteran second baseman. Pinky Higgins, third baseman, was out for several weeks with something that resembled the mumps. Dick Bartell and Buck Newsom were both incapacitated and Pitcher Tommy Bridges picks up a blister on his pitching finger every now and then.

Baker still thinks the Tigers can cop the pennant if they get a "few good breaks." Opinion is by no means unanimous on that score, but a Detroit victory would be universally popular.

The Defense of Independence

Address of Warren H. Atherton of California
Chairman, National Defense Committee, The American Legion

"The American Legion presumes to speak with a degree of authority on the defense of independence. In war its members offered their lives in that defense. For 21 years of peace, Legionnaires have struggled to arouse America to the fact that preparedness is the price of protection.

In 1919, at Minneapolis, we said: "We have had a bitter experience in the cost of unpreparedness for national defense and the lack of proper training on the part of officers and men. We realize the necessity of an immediate revision of our military and naval system, and a thorough housecleaning of the inefficient officers and methods of our entire military establishment."

"We favor a national military and naval system based on universal military obligation. It should include a relatively small Regular Army and Navy, and a citizen army and navy capable of rapid expansion to meet any national emergency. The plan should provide competitive and progressive training for all officers, both of the Army and Navy and of the citizen forces."

In 1920 at Cleveland, we drafted and offered the National Defense Act, providing for a regular army of 250,000, a National Guard of 425,000 and adequate organized reserves. Adherence to the standards of that act would have given us security now.

Twenty-one years ago we urged universal military training and adequate preparedness.

Each year for the next 20 years, we said to the American people: "The way to peace is to be prepared to defend."

Each year for these two decades we went to Congress fighting for a plan of Universal Service, fighting for appropriations to modernize and equip the Army and Navy.

In 1933 at Chicago we demanded immediate increase and mechanization of the Army, a Navy organized to defend our interests in both the Atlantic and Pacific, federalization of the Maritime Service, necessary to restore discipline and increase in preparations for Air Defense.

In spite of our campaign for adequate defense, on May 1st, 1940 we found that our regular army consisted of less than 200,000 men equipped with these weapons:

3 inch Gun, Anti aircraft	445
37 mm Gun, Anti aircraft	15
60 Caliber Machine Gun	15
3 inch anti-aircraft	2000
37 mm Anti Tank Gun	225
75 mm Gun, Modernized	141
4 inch Howitzers	Some
Tanks, Light	10
Tanks, Medium	15
Tanks, Heavy	None
Heavy Artillery	None
Portable Rocket, Ten Ton	1
Portable Rocket, 21 Ton	1
On the same date our Navy was composed of these units:
Battle ships modernized on the way	12

(All built before 1931)
Armored cruiser, under way	5
Cruiser, light, under way	15 of personal liberty, free speech, freedom of religion, universal education, freedom of occupation, self government, and the right of minorities to organize and exist as clubs, cults, parties, lodges, secret societies, business associations and unions.

Unless we can prepare to defend those rights more efficiently than our former allies, we, too, may feel iron heels on our soft necks.

In order that the tanks and guns and ammunition appropriated for may come into being in the shortest possible time, and that planes and ships "on order" may become real before the lightning strikes, we beseech every American to unite in loyal self-sacrifice to help the national program of preparedness. Neither profiteering nor picketing can have a place in democracy's struggle for life.

Let us not put our heads in the sand. Slow-downs and sit-downs, strikes and lock-outs mean lost production. Lost production can cost tens of thousands of lives at the front, should we be cursed with war. Both private wealth and labor unions are pie for Fuchers and Duces. The first law of nature, the law of self-preservation, should bind employer and employee indissolubly together in a common effort to uphold the nation which protects them.

There are no pacifists, church dissenters, minority parties, labor unions or captains of private industry in Germany or Russia. If you value your place in any one of these, you belong in the front ranks of the defenders of America.

To save our high standards of living, to preserve opportunity for our sons and daughters, "government of the people, by the people and for the people" must not be permitted to perish from this earth.

Farmer, doctor, lawyer, businessman and worker must team their way to victory!

Two great oceans partially defend us. When the sacrifice and united effort of all our people give us an Army and Navy to defend their shores, everlasting peace will nurture our free institutions.

When every boy and girl who reach the age to enjoy the privileges of citizenship are trained to defend those privileges against aggressors, no dictator will dare to attack.

With the help of a loyal citizenry, The American Legion program of preparedness can and will save America.

It calls for a Regular Army of 350,000 and National Guard of 425,000 completely mechanized and equipped with the most modern weapons of offense and defense.

The strongest air force flying, with ample bases and provisions for replacement and repair.

A Navy capable of defending our interests in both oceans at the same time.

A trained Officers Reserve sufficient to command the maximum citizen army for which there are men.

Universal military training for American youth.

Universal service in time of war upon a common basis for soldier.

WEST PARIS

Rev. Felix Mayblom and family are enjoying a month's vacation with relatives in Massachusetts.

Mrs. Ellsworth D. Curtis is quite ill at her home on Pioneer Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Curtis and Mr. and Mrs. Merton Curtis motored to Bath and Cundy's Harbor recently where they enjoyed a shore dinner. They were pleasantly surprised at Bath by meeting Mr. and Mrs. Linwood Curtis of Bridgton.

Rev. Eleanor B. Forbes and delegates from the Universalist Church, Mrs. H. R. Tuell, Edwin J. Mann, Clarence M. Coffin, Reynold E. Chase and Harold C. Perham, will attend the Universalist State Convention at Auburn, Sept. 16, 17, and 18. Miss Forbes and Mrs. Tuell will be guests of Mrs. David H. Morrill of Auburn.

The W. C. T. U. held an interesting meeting Thursday at the home of Rev. Eleanor B. Forbes. Plans were made for the Fifth Sunday evening service at the M. E. Church. It was also reported that a trained nurse had been secured for the child welfare department. A good sum was realized from the home cooked food sale.

Rally Sunday will be observed on Sept. 29 at the Universalist Sunday School. The Sunday School officials attended the Sunday School Institute at Ferry Beach, and the Primary Superintendent graduated last year. New books have been ordered.

Rev. and Mrs. Ordell Bryant of the Clinton, North Carolina, circuit attended church at West Paris Sunday and were pleasantly greeted by friends.

Miss Edwina Mann, a graduate of Gould Academy in June, is leaving next week for Stoneleigh College, Rye Beach, where she will major in Business Administration and Secretarial work. Miss Mann is the daughter of Edwin J. Mann. She attended the Maine Central Institute three years previous to her graduating year.

Sunday afternoon when about 25 people met at the High School yard to clean up after the new Gym building and ground enlargement. The older boys dug ditches and graded while the younger group raked and piled rocks south of the school building. There will be another bee next Sunday at 1 p. m., followed by a corn roast at 5:30. Lee Abbott of the Alumni Association will furnish the corn and wood for a fire. Every one bring his own sandwiches and "hot dogs." Also bring garden rakes.

Mrs. Wallace Noyes and son Mason have returned from a visit to her aunt, Mrs. Ellen Felt, in Portland.

Mr and Mrs. Alanson Cummings and daughter were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arseno Blacquire and family in Norway.

Miss Cathryn Cummings entertained Everett Chase, Laurel Young, Beryl Ring and Lloyd Waterhouse at a corn and weenie roast last Saturday.

Mrs. Fannie Cummings has received a large photo from Mrs. Sumner Sewall, taken of the group of ladies that Mrs. Sewall entertained at her summer cottage a short time ago.

Variety Shower

Miss Shirley R. Welch was tendered a variety shower by the community at Good Will Hall Tuesday evening, in honor of her approaching marriage to Thane M. Rose at the Universalist Church Saturday, Sept. 21, at 4 p. m. The shower was sponsored by the Glad Hand Class of the Universalist Church.

There was a large attendance and gifts from the Community, Penley Brothers' mill, Glad Hand Class, Universalist Church choir, Pioneer Band and individuals. A program of readings and music preceded the presentation of gifts, consisting of two piano solos by Barbara Slattery, reading by Mrs. Roy Dymont, two solos by Helmi Cummings, Mrs. Celia Lamb accompanist, and an original poem by Rev. Eleanor B. Forbes.

Wild West Glamour Revived at Pendleton Roundup

Covered wagon days and the glamour of the old West were revived at Pendleton, Ore., in the annual four-day Roundup held recently. The Far West's most celebrated rodeo attracted the most famous steer wranglers, lariat and stunt riders in America as well as thousands of Indians participating in parades and pageantry. Above are shown typical scenes in connection with the Roundup.

Blitzkrieg Makes Way for Cow

A very effective tank-stopper is "Carrie," the cow. She calmly moseys across the road in front of a tank, halting the metal juggernaut dead in its tracks. But this is only practice; if it were a real "blitz," bossy would now be a hamburger. The incident occurred at Pines Plains in upper New York state, where guardsmen and regular army troops held maneuvers.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, the Supreme Ruler over all has again removed from our midst one who has been a faithful and beloved member and whose presence at our meetings will be sadly missed,
Resolved that we as the members of Mountain View Grange extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family in their sad affliction by the great loss of their dear Sister:

Resolved that we as members deeply mourn the loss of our Worthy Sister, Shirley M. Cole, but the memory of her beautiful character will ever be with us.
She left the assurance that she joined the great throng above where pain and sorrow never enter;

Resolved, that our charter be draped for thirty days, that a copy of these resolutions be placed upon the records of our Grange, one sent to the bereaved family and one printed in the Oxford County Citizen.

Parents

When you and your family start on a train, motor or bus trip, be sure you have a box of Mothersill's. Travel nausea inevitably occurs at an inconvenient time, but when prepared with Mothersill's—yours will be a happy journey. Children are not accustomed to the constant motion and swaying of trains, motors and buses, and often become faint and nauseated after riding but a short way. Relieve this travel diseases with a timely dose of Mothersill's, the remedy successfully used for more than a third of a century, and recommended by physicians, nurses and well

CHAPTER X—Continued

"You're in fine form tonight, Gabriella." Connie Belmont fluttered her long lashes at them across the table. "If Pete wasn't your cousin, I'd be a wall-flower, too."

John turned to Gay.

"Will you dance with me?" he asked quietly.

Her eyes, brilliant with animation for the others, clouded as her quick upward glance met his.

"I'd like to," she said and rose as he got up to pull back her chair. "Excuse me," she said directly to Robert Cameron and, silently, at John's side, walked to the edge of the dance floor.

She was light in his arms. He scarcely felt her hands, on his shoulder, in his hand. She held herself at a little distance from him. He could not see her face, only her red-brown hair, brushed smooth tonight, bound with a narrow bandeau of dull gold leaves. They circled the floor in silence. Then John said:

"It's a nice party."

"Yes, isn't it?" she said and was silent again.

He had thought that, dancing, he might find her again. During this interminable evening, she had held him off as, now, physically, she kept a distance between them. Her animation for the others excluded him, though he had sat beside her. Silently, miserably, unable to respond to her mood, he had watched the effect of her high spirits upon the party. Now with him, alone, she was silent.

"Are you having a good time?" he asked, when again and more slowly, as the number of dancers increased, they had circled the floor.

"Oh, yes!" she said. "Are you?"

"No. You know I'm not!"

She drew back and looked up at him. "Why not?" she asked lightly, smiling, her eyes sparkling in dark blue glints between the thick straight lashes. "It's a beautiful party. Robert always does things nicely." Her expression changed. "Oh John, no!" she gave a little despairing cry. "I'm miserable. I've never spent such a wretched evening. Why didn't we do as we'd planned? Robert wouldn't have minded."

"You were afraid we'd quarrel," he said.

"Yes, I was. If you'd seen your face when I told you what I intended to do this evening."

"I never found anything so completely selfish," he burst out with his vehemence.

"It was selfish of me to have spoken to you in that way, for I know that it is the only way the case is going to be cleared. It didn't occur to me that you would think me selfish and cold."

"But you are selfish, Gay!"

"We are both in a completely independent position. He is not a bad man. When I saw you come with me, I was so sure of you, I'm glad to be in the clear."

"But you don't want to visit Terry Wells in the back?"

"There's a big one thing I really want to do."

"Don't you know how that makes me feel?"

"I should hope!" Her smile trembled.

"No, you don't know," he said bitterly. "You can't know what it is like to feel humiliated, not to be able to take you away with me, now, tonight to have you make explanations which I should make. You haven't been happy and neither have I, except that first day, Christmas Eve."

"Yesterday and today in the country? Weren't you happy? I was."

"But why?" They moved slowly, only their feet conscious of the rhythm of the waltz. "Because we avoided any reference to the subjects upon which we disagree, because we were alone except for Kate and your father."

"Oh, dear!" Her laughter shook.

"I made you come here because I was afraid we'd quarrel if we were alone, and I wanted your last night here to be pleasant. Don't, John. Talking spoils everything. If we keep on at this rate—" Her head dropped against his shoulder. He felt her tremble in the tightened clasp of his arms.

"I'm sorry, but I've got to know. Look at me, Gay." His voice was rough with urgency. "Tell me. Do you want to go on?"

Her eyes, lifted to his, were brilliant with terror.

"John!" she cried faintly. "Darling!"

"I don't see how you can," he said more gently. "I'm— There's nothing—"

"I love you," she said steadily. "Do you, Gay?" His lips moved but no further words came. He saw that her eyes brimmed with tears.

"Darling," he said, moved as he was always by her rare tears. "Let's get out of here. I don't want to talk to the others—I want to be alone with you."

"I want that, too," she blinked, then smiled. "Do look spryly from weeping? Lucky I don't use mascara."

"Very lucky. You look lovely." His arms released her reluctantly.

"Can we say all the polite things now and get away?"

"Of course we can." She held his hand tightly as they made their way through revolving couples toward the table which her step-father had engaged. No one was there. The other members of the party were dancing in the glow of artfully medwed lights on the crowded floor.

"We'll have to wait," John sighed.

"No, we won't."

"But patience, darling."

"Wait!" She caught up her evening bag from the table, opened it, and put a lipstick. Holding fast with her left hand to his hand, she pressed in staggering bright red cap-stalls on the table cloth—

"GOOD BY!"

GAY AND JOHN.

John set his cup in the saucer and pushed back the sleeve of his right arm to glance at his watch. Gay watched him with widened eyes, holding her breath.

"Fifteen minutes," he said.

So let her breath exhale with a sighing sound.

"Time for another cup of coffee," she said, and glanced toward the water crowsing against the wall.

"No, darling. All these steps." His lips smiled at her across the table in the station restaurant, but the smile did not reach his eyes.

"Do you want me to miss the train?"

"That's the object of drinking two cups of coffee. John must you go?"

"Must, Gay?" He rose and walked around the table to her chair. "I don't want to go."

"If not, you?" She caught his hand resting on the back of the chair. "Even after—everything?" She tilted ed her head back to look up at him, her eyes soft and bright, a half-smile curving her lips.

"None of that seems important now. Darling, come."

She rose slowly. He held her coat. She slipped into it. He bundled the collar about her throat.

"I shouldn't have let you come with me." Going out through the door of the restaurant, he held her arm tightly. "It's so late and so cold."

"Carl is waiting. I'll be all right."

A red-cap with John's luggage followed them across the vast vaulted concourse of the station. Only a few late travelers moved past and before them. Their footsteps made a hollow echoing sound. She pressed close to him.

"We'll have to wait," John sighed.

"Take me with you, John."

He smiled down into her lifted eyes, sad in the depths beneath the brilliance. "What would I do with you, Gay?"

"Couldn't we rent something? A house or an apartment. How do people in Portland live?"

"I live in Dr. Sargeant's home, as you know very well."

"Was—is that a stipulation?"

"A very important one. I couldn't have come here to see you if I'd had to pay board since October. I couldn't have bought this new hat which you don't admire."

"I do. It's a marvelous hat. Now that I've gotten used to it, I think it makes you look very handsome and distinguished."

"Liar!" He pressed her arm with his arm against his side. "Darling!"

"Has Dr. Sargeant a family, John?"

"Mrs. Sargeant. Their older daughter is there this winter with two small sons. Her husband is an officer in the Navy. There's a younger daughter in college who comes home pretty often for weekends."

"Is she attractive?"

"I don't know. I'll look at her when I get back and send a report."

She laughed.

"I've never really seen a girl since I've known you."

"Darling! I'd like to believe you."

"Do you know how you look now?"

"Wan and exhausted from trying not to burst into a flood of tears."

"Like a Russian princess. In that fur cap and coat. There should be a drosky waiting outside for you instead of a limousine."

"There are no more Russian princesses."

"There are in illustrations for Tolstoy's novels."

"But they don't have blue eyes."

"They should." His voice faltered. "Oh, Gay."

"Don't go, John. It seems such a little while since I came here to meet you and we've wasted so much of it being unhappy."

"I can barely remember."

"And we're wasting what's left talking about Russian princesses and Dr. Sargeant's family."

"That's called whistling to keep your spirits up. What should we talk about, darling?"

"I don't know. I should be able to think of something beautiful, something that you would remember. I can't. All I can say is I love you."

"That's beautiful and I will remember it."

"Darling."

"You sweet!"

They neared the train gate. John tightened his grasp on her arm.

"Will they let you go down with me, Gay?"

"I'd like to see anybody stop me. My grandfather owned most of the New York, New Haven and Hartford once."

The official at the gate asked no questions.

They descended into the chill air and murky light of the lower level. The train with curtains drawn over section windows and lights burning dimly in vestibules waited on the track. The red-cap led the way toward the sleeper in which John's berth was reserved. They lagged behind, walking slowly, very close together.

"You're going, aren't you? I believe it now that I see the train. John, when will I see you again?"

"I don't know. I'll be tied down pretty closely after Dr. Sargeant sails, except on Wednesday afternoons and evenings."

"May I come to see you some Wednesday afternoon?"

"Would you, Gay?" His face brightened. "I want my mother and sisters to meet you. And my grandmother. You'll love my grandmother."

She glanced at him and away. "What?" he asked.

"More family? Can we risk it?"

"They'll love you."

"I hope so." She hesitated, then continued. "I'm sorry," she said. "I wanted—"

"I love you."

"I love you."

A brake-man's call echoed past them. They made for the vestibule of the train.

"Better not go aboard, Miss," the porter said pleasantly. "We leave in one minute."

"One more minute, John."

He caught her into his arms. Their lips met and clung. A second call echoed. He broke away from her arms. The porter leaned out of the vestibule. John raced into the train, colliding with the Negro.

"Good by," he called as the train began to move.

"Good by." She ran a few steps beside the car.

John caught her hand, dropped it. "Remember. Some Wednesday afternoon."

The train picked up speed. She fell back, frantically, steel straining for a last glimpse of John's waving arm, his face, the hat that she hadn't admired. The train moved forward into darkness. The red light at the rear diminished into a dot, a pinpoint, was gone.

Gay turned toward the stairs leading up to the station level. Some Wednesday afternoon—

CHAPTER XI

John stopped his car before a square frame house set flush with the pavement along a street of square frame houses separated by stretches of snow-covered lawns. The late afternoon light was gray and a sharp wind blew in across Casco Bay. John, stepping out of the car, glanced up through bare branches of elms, serene and gracious in summer, etched now in bleak austerity against a cold gray sky. There was snow in the wind, he thought. A March blizzard would probably leave in its wake an epidemic of influenza. Nothing to do about it, though. He sunk his chin into the collar of his bearskin coat and started across the icy pavement to the steps of the house.

A child's voice, shouting, grew him to the fence, parallel to the street. He looked through brown skeletons of lilac bushes into the side yard.

"Hi, Commodore!" he called.

The shouting stopped. Nathaniel Adams, Dr. Sargeant's eight-year-old grandson, standing on the seat of a garden swing strung with an intricate network of ropes and string, waved a mittened hand toward him.

"I'm Admiral Byrd," he called.

"Oh, are you? How's it going?—Land in sight?"

"We're in despatch straits," Admiral Byrd in a blue and red snow-suit and high buckled galoshes shouted cheerfully across the ice-floes of the Antarctic. "Radio's gone dead. Can't get a squeak out of her anyhow."

"That's serious," John sympathized. "Have you tested the tubes?"

"Aya. Deader'n a door-nail."

John smiled, marveling at the rapidly with which a child adapted himself to an environment. Young Nat had been born in the Philippines and cut his teeth in San Francisco, but his "Aya" was as authentic as though, instead of six months, he had spent the six years of his life in Maine.

"Well, keep your courage up. You ought to sight land by morning."

"Maybe you can find out what's wrong with it?" Nat suggested.

"Sorry, old man. Excuse me—Admiral. I'm a doctor, not a radio-technician."

"You could try anyway, couldn't you?" the child persisted.

"Got to keep moving, Nat. You'd better come in pretty soon. This wind is cold."

John went into the house. Lamps were lit in the wide hallway. The warm air made his face burn. He threw off his coat and went to the table beneath a gilt-framed mirror.

The day's accumulation of mail lay there in a tidy heap. John ran through it rapidly. Nothing from Gay. There had been nothing for three days. That was not unusual, though. Sometimes he received two letters a day. Again several days would pass without a message from her. He'd hoped there would be something today. Her letters were graphic, amusing, affectionate. He enjoyed them. Well—

Laundry Experts Advise

Mending Before Washing

The tradition that mending follows washing as inevitably as spring follows winter is being gradually discarded in favor of the reverse way of doing things. Proponents of the modern school of laundering now advocate doing the mending first.

There are several advantages in getting the repair work out of the way before clothing and household furnishings go into the laundry. A small hole in a sock is likely to become a large one in handling. A frayed buttonhole may be torn apart or the thin portion of a sheet gave way entirely. Perhaps it is just as well to exempt labor or missing buttons from advance restoration and sew them on later. But patching, darning, reinforcing, and such things, if done in advance, will prolong the life of the laundry big's contents materially.

The chief objection to this order used to be a natural distaste for handling soiled laundry, but discriminating people no longer delay washing until clothing and linens become unpleasant to touch and smell. Practical reasons, as well as aesthetic ones, have brought about more frequent washing. Soil and perspiration left in fabrics wear them out through erosion and chemical action. And the vigorous handling needed to remove these harmful substances in washing causes additional wear and tear.

MAGALLOWAY

Rev. George Duke has been on a week's vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Flanders tendered a reception for their son and his bride here Friday evening. About fifty were present. The men in the mill presented them with a purse of money. A nice supper was served and the bride cut a lovely cake filled with favors.

Friends in town have received cards announcing the birth of a son to Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Ingraham of Bingham, formerly of this town.

A large crowd attended the dance here Friday evening.

Emery Cameron left for High School in Rangeley. He will stay with his sister.

FRANKLIN GRANGE
BRYANT POND

Franklin Grange of Bryant Pond met Saturday night, Sept. 7, with a good attendance. Franklin Grange plans to exhibit at the Oxford County Fair again this year.

The program was a very interesting talk by Lecturer Rena Howe on her trip to Ohio to the Mail Carriers Convention. Packages were brought by the members and sold by auction. J. Everett Howe was auctioneer. A penny lunch was served. The proceeds will be given to Frederic Robie Grange, East Otisfield, to help them after the loss of their Grange Hall.

A social was held after the meeting. The next meeting will be a safety program.

Several members of Franklin Grange went on a hot dog road Wednesday evening at Songo Pond and had a fine time.

MOST people who use Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills say that one pill usually relieves their headaches. In the regular package, Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills cost one penny each. In the economy packages, one penny buys 1 1/4 pills.

Why Don't You Try Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills?

They taste good, act promptly, do not upset the stomach, contain no opiates or laxative medicines.

You may be miles away from a drug store when you get your next attack of Headache, Neuralgia, or Muscular Aches and Pains. Why not get a package of Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills today and be prepared for emergencies?

THE CUNNING OF OLD MAN COYOTE

IN ONE thing Old Man Coyote is very like Granny and Reddy Fox—he has no real friends. There are plenty who think him very smart, and in a way look up to him because of his cunning, but he hasn't any real friends. People who live by their wits seldom do have. If the truth be known they do not want them. At least Old Man Coyote does not seem to want them. Perhaps he thinks that friends might give away his secrets if they found them out, and you know friends have a way of finding out things. If some friend had known that Old

He didn't touch so much as a feather of that foolish duck.

Man Coyote had dined on one of Farmer Brown's ducks. Old Man Coyote wouldn't have rested for a minute. But no friend, or enemy either, did know of it, and he didn't mean that any should. It is not his way to go about bragging of what he has done. No, indeed! Old Man Coyote is far too cunning for that.

The very next day after he had dined on that duck he went up to the duck pond to see how things looked and while he lay hidden in the tall grass a fat duck sat down right in front of his nose and quacked loudly in the foolish way ducks have. What do you think Old Man Coyote did to that foolish and heedless duck? No, you guessed wrong that time. He didn't seize it and take it away for another good dinner, although he wanted it so much that the water trickled from the corners of his mouth. He didn't touch so much as a feather of that foolish duck, and that shows how cunning he is.

"If Farmer Brown's boy misses another duck tonight he will be sure that some one is stealing them, and then there will be no end of trouble. If I don't steal another for a week he will forget all about the one he has lost and will stop counting the ducks every night. Then it will be safe to take another," said he.

So he waited a week, and, sure enough, Farmer Brown's boy had stopped counting his ducks. Then Old Man Coyote dined again royally. But the next one he took Farmer Brown's boy did miss, and when he counted his flock of course he found out that this was the third to disappear, and right away he made up his mind that the thief must be caught and punished. But who was the thief? There was a question, indeed. He strongly suspected Reddy Fox. He felt sure that it must be Reddy Fox. But if it was, when did Reddy do it? The ducks were shut up at night, and Farmer Brown's boy was certain that Reddy could not get at them then. It must be that he lay in wait for them very early in the morning, when they were let out to swim in the pond. So every morning for a week Farmer Brown's boy led where he could watch the ducks after they were let out. There he lay until the breakfast bell called him in, and after breakfast he went out and counted the ducks. None were missing. Yet at a time during the week one was taken.

The truth is, Old Man Coyote was so cunning that he stole those ducks right in broad daylight, in the very middle of the day. He knew that no one would expect anything to happen to them then, and so no one would be on the watch. And no one was. And as he always took the greatest care that the other ducks should not be frightened and that the one caught should not have a chance to quack or make a sound, no one suspected him. Oh, he was very sly and cunning, was Old Man Coyote, and, as Farmer Brown's boy said, it seemed as if those ducks just melted away. Finally he tried shutting the ducks up all day as well as all night, and then it was the chickens that began to disappear. Farmer Brown's boy was in despair. He couldn't watch them all day because there was too much work to be done.

"It's that fox! It must be that fox!" said he. "I guess I've got to go hunting after all. I had about made up my mind that I would put my gun away and never get it out again, but I can't afford to lose all my ducks and chickens."

Dramatic Felt Hats Have Large Brims

Your hat must look important this season. The new dashing wide-brimmed felts do just that.

There is no limit to how nonchalantly the brims turn up in dramatic ways. The brim that dashes high at one side gives you the new profile hat which is a leading fashion this season.

To show your pompadour off, many felts flare abruptly off the forehead and to emphasize the movement these hats are worn far back on the head.

Soft brims that can be manipulated characterize the newer felts, and to add to their flattery handsome black lace veils are adjusted most spectacularly.

Real Style Appeal

Here is an afternoon costume that has immediate style appeal down to the minutest accessory detail. The dashing dramatic profile brims so smart this season are the milliners' joy because they sell at first "try-on" because they are about as flattering as ever a hat could be. The hat worn by lady is of latest type, the sort that women are clamoring for as a favorite "fashion first" for fall. You'll love the belt she wears. In this new belt of soft supple suede, Critteron, the designer, achieves that ever so desirable nipped-in waist effect that slenderizes the figure so attractively. Its chased gold buckle with swirls of suede will find its way straight to your hearts—a new model you will be wanting because of its chic and charm and because suede accessories are so style-high this season.

Casual Dress That Flatters the Figure

NOTHING is more important during the summer—and every season for that matter—than this type of casual frock, softly tailored and classically simple. This version (Design No. 1962-B) is ideal for women's figures, because it has a highbusted, narrow-hipped line. And that perfection of line is achieved so simply—merely by means of long darts that narrow the waistline and break into soft fullness above and below. Gathers on the shoulders are the only other detailing. The rest is just straight seams. But you can't really tell what a distinctive, comfortable, charming fashion it is until you have it on. Then you'll repeat it many times, in silk print, rayon sheers, and street cottons like linen and batiste.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1962-B is designed for sizes 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 34 requires, with long sleeves, 5½ yards of 39-inch material; with short, 4¾ yards. Send order to:

Concentrate Skirt Fullness in Front

Interest focuses on skirts this season. The fact that the new silhouette is slimmer does not mean all fullness is abolished. The basic thought in achieving slimmness is to keep the sides flat and the very newest treatment is to concentrate fullness directly in front.

Then too the new to-one-side fastenings make for slenderizing lines, and designers handle the drapes always with an eye to achieve slimmness.

Daytime Dresses Feature Jet Embroidery, Nailheads

Daytime dresses take on gleam and glitter. Black dresses especially are enhanced with elaborate nail-head treatments.

Jet on black is interpreted in many ways. It may be embroidered on or pockets of jet may be applied and if you are jewelry-minded wear jet necklace and bracelet.

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions. These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

many pieces than to fold them. The best napkins may be banded in blue and white, luncheon mats may be rolled on a red stick with a red band and green may be used for the bridge table cloth. Linen holders like these would make attractive gifts, too. And speaking of shelves and drawers; girls adore the stocking case in Book 3, and the drawer pads in Book 4; and they make dainty gifts for any one. The table cloth case in Book 2 is another good linen closet idea.

'Fading' Water Supply.
QUESTION: Please explain the remedy for hot water "fading." It had something to do with the adjusting of the valves. You may be interested to know that we have been able to overcome this somewhat by changing the type of washer in the hot water shower faucet.

ANSWER: See that all of the shut-off valves in the line, between the storage tank and the fixtures, are opened wide. Clogging at the horizontal pipe joints as well as rust in the pipes may also cause this trouble. Some types of fiber washers have a tendency to soften and expand in hot water. This expansion of the washer naturally cuts down the flow of water. Try replacing the washers in the other faucets.

Aluminum Paint.
QUESTION: Please give me information on heat-proof aluminum paint for a steel furnace and air-conditioning plant.

ANSWER: All makers of aluminum paint have varieties intended for high temperatures, which can be had at paint stores. The liquid part is a high quality varnish. When heated, the varnish disappears and the aluminum flakes seem to weld themselves to the metal. In application, the metal must be thoroughly clean and free from paint. It should be gone over with steel wool.

Re-covering a Roof.
QUESTION: In re-covering a roof that now has asphalt shingles on it, would it be better to lay new shingles on the roof as it is, or lay the new shingles after removing the old ones?

ANSWER: It is not necessary to remove the old shingles. The additional thickness will provide greater resistance to the weather as well as better insulation against cold in winter and heat in summer. The mess and cost of removing the old shingles will also be eliminated.

Waterproofing a Wall.
QUESTION: I am told that the only way to waterproof the outside of a cellar wall is to apply hot tar, then a layer of tar paper, and another coat of tar. Will liquid asphalt do the job just as well?

ANSWER: Liquid asphalt can be used in that way, with roofing felt instead of tar paper. Another material that is coming into wide use is very thin copper sheet backed by felt. A third method is a heavy coat of dense concrete combined with a waterproofer.

Old Brick.
QUESTION: In replacing two chimneys 35 years old, should we use new brick, or can the old ones be used again? The difference in cost will be about $12 to $15. Will new brick be worth it?

ANSWER: If the old bricks are not crumbling, and are in good condition, there is no reason why they should not be used again. You will probably need some new brick to replace those that are chipped or broken.

Faded Awnings.
QUESTION: My awnings are three years old and in good condition, but badly faded. Is there some kind of paint that can be used to improve the appearance?

ANSWER: They can be painted with a good brand of house paint thinned with one-fourth as much turpentine. Apply the paint in a thin coat and brush into the fibers; a thick coat will cause sticking. Paint should be thoroughly dry before folding the awning.

Painting a House.
QUESTION: I am thinking of repainting my house, myself. Would you advise a coat of top quality house paint, or a mixture of paint and varnish? I have been told such a finish would stay clean longer and last longer.

ANSWER: In repainting a house use a top quality house paint throughout. Thin down the first coat according to the manufacturer's directions. A good quality house paint needs no varnish for reinforcing.

Household News

By Eleanor Howe

Is the tea party the thing of the past? I sincerely hope not because there is nothing quite so comfy and relaxing as a good cup of tea. And you can make it even more delightful by sharing it with a few of your friends.

The tea hour may be the time to become utterly feminine, with lazy discussions on the fashions of the day, the latest movie, and even tales of cute sayings of Johnnie and Mary Jane. Or it may be enlarged with masculinity, with the trend of the conversation leaning more toward current events, politics, books and even the arts.

I have a friend who quite often gives teas on Sunday afternoons. They are highly successful, not because of her lovely silverware or china, (because here I must confess that most of her china does not even match); they are successful rather, because her friends gather for the pleasure of chatting with one another.

The most meager necessities would include a tea tray, on which the tea set and napkins are placed, a table from which to serve the tea, glistening china, and well-polished silver.

If the party is small you may, as hostess, pour the tea, asking the guests to help themselves to cream or lemon and sugar. If it is a larger party and it is necessary for you to constantly greet your guests as they arrive, ask one of your friends to preside at the tea table for you.

Dainty sandwiches, hot buttered toast, thin slivers of cinnamon toast and small English muffins are appropriate to serve with tea. Popular accompaniments to tea are sandwiches made from nut bread, sliced very thin, and buttered.

Hot Tea.
Rinse teapot with boiling water. Allow 1 teaspoon of tea for each cup and "one for the pot." Place tea in teapot, and pour freshly boiling water over tea leaves. Cover and allow tea to steep 3 to 5 minutes, as desired. Remove ball or bag containing the leaves, and serve at once.

Chicken Sandwiches With Cranberry Sauce.

Right here and now we put in our plea for revolt against chicken sandwiches that are bone dry! Have you tried putting a thin slice of canned cranberry sauce in with the chicken? We eat cranberry sauce with chicken when it's served on a plate. Why not in a sandwich? Try a slice of canned cranberry sauce in your chicken sandwiches the very next time you make them and see if you don't agree there's a vast improvement.

Butterfly Tea Cakes.

(Makes 8-10 tea cakes)
1 cup cake flour
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 egg
1/4 cup coffee cream
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1/2 pint whipping cream
Mix and sift all dry ingredients. Place unbeaten egg and coffee cream in a bowl and beat thoroughly. Add vanilla extract and pour liquid ingredients into the dry ingredients and beat until smooth. Bake in well-greased cupcake or muffin tins in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees) for 30-35 minutes. Cool. Then cut tops from cakes, and cut each top in half.

Scoop a spoonful of cake from each one. Whip the cream and fill cavity with whipped cream. Arrange tops to form butterfly and serve at once.

Danish Vanilla Fingers.

3/4 cup shortening
1/2 cup sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 pound almonds (1 cup blanched and ground fine)
Cream shortening and add sugar gradually. Beat in the egg and vanilla. Blend well. Sift flour and salt together, and add to the first mixture. Stir in the ground almonds. Turn dough onto a lightly floured board and knead until the mixture is smooth and no longer clings to the hands. Cut off small pieces of dough and shape in rolls about 2 1/4 inches long and a scant half inch thick. Place on greased cookie sheet and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for about 15 minutes.

Easy Entertaining.

Doesn't ham loaf with hot cheese biscuits sound inviting to you? It is so simple you can plan and serve the meal yourself, giving mother a day off to visit her friends or to do that much-needed shopping that she hasn't had time to do before. The menu and recipes for this deliciously simple and simply delicious lunch are given in Eleanor Howe's book, "Easy Entertaining," which you may obtain by sending 10 cents, in coin, to Eleanor Howe, 919 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Woolknit Suit

The ideal travel suit for air-conditioned trains is this woolknit costume made of zephyr yarn. The long torso jacket is double breasted with high notched revers and bow-knot pockets. The skirt is cleverly gored for sleek hips and comfortable flare. Wear it with this new off-the-face beret of navy felt trimmed with a band and bow of pique to match the white pique vestee. A silver lapel flower and silver leaf earrings, navy calf bag and white gloves complete this smart outfit. If you are a black-and-white enthusiast you will love this woolknit suit in black with white accessories.

Benefits to Our Readers

THE PUBLIC nature of advertising benefits everyone it touches. It benefits the public by describing exactly the products that are offered. It benefits employees, because the advertiser must be more fair and just than the employer who has no obligation to the public. These benefits of advertising are quite apart from the obvious benefits which advertising confers—the lower prices, the higher quality, the better service that go with advertised goods and firms.

OXFORD COUNTY UNITED PARISH NOTES

Will two of the staff away we have to make some adjustments during the rest of September, but we hope to be ready to go at top speed, starting the first of October. During this month we will have some all-the-parish services, Sunday mornings. This next Sunday we are to meet at North Waterford at 10:30 a. m. We hope you will try to be present. Last Sunday we were at East Stoneham, and had a very good service conducted by Mr. Townsend. He had many helpful thoughts for us, and his wit and humor were as refreshing as ever.

We will hope to see you Thursday night of this week for good food, fun and fellowship at Albany. It is a fine night you know. Then a week from Thursday night you will find a good supper waiting for you at East Stoneham. The next night Friday you will want to be at Center, Lowell for your supper.

The Young People of the Parish are invited to meet with the Waterford Group, Sunday evening at 6:30, at the Parsonage. We will talk over some of our summer experiences.

From our Waterford fellowship we are going to miss Mrs. Ella Millett and Mrs. Fannie Hubbard.

DIED

In Bryant Pond, Sept. 5, James Q. Allen, formerly of Paris, aged 86 years.

In Lewiston, Sept. 6, Eben S. Kilborn, formerly of Bethel, aged 94 years.

BETHEL AND VICINITY

Miss Mary Sanborn of Portland is spending a week at her home in town.

Mrs. Ralph Berry is visiting her sister, Mrs. Leon Pickett, at New Gloucester.

Mrs. Ray Crockett visited Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kennison and family in Strong Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Brown, Irving and John Brown visited relatives in Athens Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Mackenzie of Lynn, Mass., were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Davis.

Rupert Conroy of Everett, Mass., is spending his vacation at the home of Mrs. Grace Swan.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Vachon arrived Saturday from Cabot, Vt. Mr. Vachon is the French instructor at Gould Academy.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Clark, Hugh Clark and Miss Marie Wedell, all of Ridley Park, Penna., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Sanborn and family.

For over 30 years Mrs. Millett was clerk of the Waterford Church. It was a service of love well done. During the years she had been with us we had come to love and admire Mrs. Hubbard as a most remarkable woman.

We would send our greetings to all those friends who have been in the Parish during the summer. It is hard to believe that the season is so soon over, and that we have had so few chances to see and talk with you. We thank you for the many ways in which you have helped and encouraged us. You carry with you our best wishes for the months that must pass before you come again.
